8/3/2011	BN	Painting	A 3'x5' painting of a west bound Burlington Northern freight train crossing the bridge about one mile east of the town of Priest River. This painting by Al Urness was done in the Burlington Northern Depot in 1971 and displayed on the east wall of the passenger waiting room until the closure of the station August 15th, 1984. Al Urness was a passenger waiting for his train to Bonners Ferry to do some work there. While waiting he demonstrated his skill. I asked him to do a portrait of my deceased five year old daughter and portraits of my family. We talked about a painting for the east wall of the depot. Thus: a painting that was enjoyed by railroad passengers, customers, and railroad employees for years. Lowell Sletstoser	2014.027.001
